By your side from first breaths to first steps

For Immediate Release

(COLUMBUS, Neb.) – At Columbus Community Hospital, community is more than a name — it’s a commitment to your family’s well-being.

That’s why Columbus Community Hospital is proud to offer its dedicated maternal child health, neonatal intensive care unit, First Steps and Healthy Families programs to the expectant mothers, newborns and growing families of our community.

When mothers choose to deliver at the hospital, they can expect the best from a skilled nursing team and lactation specialists who provide personalized care, guidance and support every step of the way. The hospital also has certified pediatric hospitalists and obstetricians available 24/7 to ensure you and your baby receive the best care, day or night.

“Our maternal child health team considers it a privilege to care for you and your baby during this special moment of your life,” said Kim Eisenman, director of maternal child health at the hospital. “It’s our goal to provide a safe and healthy birth experience for all our patients.”

The hospital’s newly renovated maternal child health department features eight state-of-the-art labor, delivery, recovery and postpartum rooms designed for optimal comfort. A fully equipped surgical suite is also available to ensure the highest level of safety for mothers and their babies.

New families will find peace of mind in the department’s NICU, which offers private rooms and specialized support for newborns in need.

“You can be confident we will be there to help navigate your journey into parenthood and beyond,” Eisenman said. “And even though every journey is different, we are here to support you and your family along the way.”

Each day, our providers celebrate the miracle of new life. They are dedicated to nurturing the health and well-being of the growing families in our community, because your family’s care is our top priority. Experience firsthand why community truly is our middle name.
