Brandon Borer,
DPM

COLUMBUS ORTHOPEDIC & SPORTS
MEDICINE CLINIC

Brandon Borer, DPM, is passionate about helping relieve people's foot pains — so much so, in fact, that every week the podiatrist invites fellows (student surgeons) into his operating room to learn. “I really enjoy mentoring the students and explaining my thought process leading up to surgery,” he said.

Borer, who grew up in the Albion, Nebraska, area, started working at Columbus Orthopedic & Sports Medicine Clinic after finishing his education because he wanted to relocate back to Nebraska. He grew up on a dairy farm, and had originally wanted to be a farmer before he decided to go into medicine.

Throughout his life, Borer has benefitted from the wisdom of people more experienced than him — first from his parents, with whom he worked daily on the farm, and then from older, more seasoned surgeons throughout his training. “I have been able to get pieces of information from each of them to incorporate into my everyday practice,” he said.

As a podiatrist, Borer provides conservative and surgical care of the foot and ankle. “I love my work because it allows me the opportunity to interact with many people from the area,” he said. “I find it very satisfying to alleviate people's symptoms that they have been dealing with for an extended period of time.”

While Borer loves working with his patients, he also greatly values his life outside of his practice. He and his wife, Casey, have four children ranging in age from 5 to 13, and he has often volunteered as a coach for their activities.

During the few moments in which he has time to himself, he enjoys spending time outside and watching movies.
