

PHYSICIAN SPOTLIGHT

Alicia Mizner, MD

COLUMBUS HOSPITAL
MEDICINE

As a hospitalist, Alicia Mizner, MD, sees many senior patients in a typical day of work. She wouldn't have it any other way — Mizner says she loves spending time with them.

"They have lived and seen it all," she said.

While Mizner has been a hospitalist at Columbus Community Hospital since 2017, she is quick to point out that she is, foremost, a wife to her husband, Brandon, and mother to her children Atticus and Austin. The hospitalist job, she says, is something she does "in my spare time."

She and Brandon were happy to find jobs in Columbus because it's close to their family members and just the right-sized city for them.

Mizner says she loves her job as a hospitalist. "I enjoy getting to the bottom of things and solving problems as quickly as possible, which is what we strive to do in the hospital," she said. "We get to enjoy seeing most people improve and get better during their hospital stays. Coming alongside patients and their families, often during their greatest time of need, is both a humbling and gratifying experience."

While Mizner at first wanted to be a basketball star or pilot when she was growing up, she quickly fell in love with science when she started performing "science experiments" at home in elementary school.

Now, when she's not in the hospital, Mizner likes to spend her time working out (so she can keep up with her children), reading, praying, and skiing during the winter.

If she ever won the lottery, Mizner said, she would support as many orphanages as she could, get her pilot's license, and buy a plane.

But for now, she's content to make a difference in her patients' lives, one at a time.

“

I enjoy getting to the bottom of things and solving problems as quickly as possible.

”

Visit columbushosp.org to view our online physician directory, which can give you more information about the medical staff who serve our community.